Macros are customizable keyboard shortcuts that can be configured by the user. KeyMacro will create a window where the user can place the macro definition and its arguments, and then it will make the macro automatically run when the user presses the corresponding keys or combinations. There are two ways to get keymappings: 1. Manual configuration: the user clicks on the Customize button, enters a shortcut name and chooses whether to put arguments or not. 2. Automatic configuration: the user clicks on the Start recording button, then chooses a shortcut name, places the arguments and lets the macro record. 2. To use KeyMacro, first you have to define a macro and give it a name. The macro will run each time you press the given keys or combinations. For example, you can create the macro to open your browser by pressing the keys "Alt" and "F2". Now you can press the keys that you want to be able to define a keymacro on them, and choose whether to use the arguments. Actions: Customize. Configure macro. Start recording macro. Start recording keymacro. Keymacro. Macro editor. 3. To delete a macro, press the menu button and select the Delete macro: action from the pop-up menu. 3. To configure keymappings for a keyboard, open the Keyboard preference pane (from System Preferences). 2.5 - Audio Recorder 5 Audio Recorder is an application that records the output from your computer's sound card into WAV, MP3 or OGG files.
