Have you any idea? Best Regards A: You can try to use below command. I tested it on windows 10 findstr /D /N /C:"xforcekeygen32bitsor64bitsversionInfrastructureDesignSuite2018activation" "%SystemRoot%\system32\config\system" If your version is lower than 10.0.16299.0, it can find this file, otherwise it can't. EDIT : Is there any file with the name xforcekeygen32bitsor64bitsversionInfrastructureDesignSuite2018activation that exist on your system? Try to change your search path (search folder that contains "%SystemRoot%\system32\config\system"). You can change it via Registry Key (Win + R) > type regedit, find Configure, and then set the below value. You can set the value to system32\config\system to search the whole system for files and to another path like (c:\users\your\system32\config\system), etc. HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Classes\CLSID\{E97B9C39-2698-4C3C-9686-1472D9768904} HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Wow6432Node\Classes\CLSID\{E97B9C39-2698-4C3C-9686-1472D9768904} By the way if you cannot change this value, then you can backup/create a copy of the value and use it. How I learned to stop worrying and love Customer Success Lately I've been reflecting back to the beginning of my career as a consultant, and my early days as a lead SDR. I fondly remember stumbling around in a loose collection of skills from various professional development training sessions, and settling on Customer Success as a career path. Looking back, I see that I spent a lot of time and energy "studying" to prepare for consulting interviews, and spent way less time thinking about how I could be most effective as a consultant. In fact, one of the reasons I became a consultant was to avoid having to answer the "so what do you do?" question. As an Engineer, there was a real sense of wanting to be "

And then I scan it for possible Winforms, VB and XAML, but there's no mention of such files. Just some console stuff. A: You can check wich version is hosted here on GitHub. Then, you can check this AssemblyName: string assemblyName = assembly.GetName (); if (string.Equals (assemblyName, "Microsoft.Extensions.DependencyInjection.Abstractions", StringComparison.OrdinalIgnoreCase)) { var type = assembly.GetType (name); if (type!= null) { result = type.Name; } } Also check this format string or this too, it's for Monogame! var stringFormat = new System.Globalization.CultureInfo("en-US").NumberFormat; The number in the brackets should be the code of your assembly, plus the version. For example, the code is 1.0.0.0.000 but the version is 1.0.0.0.000.0001 Edit: I think you must use the version of your assembly that you want to check. For example, if you want to check Version 1.0.0.0.000.0 you must use "1.0.0.0.0" instead of "1.0.0.0.000.0001" Best and Worst of Brunch Best and Worst of Brunch best and worst of brunch Sunday, September 29, 2010 Danielle's There are two kinds of people in this world: those who know the restaurant Danielle's and those who want to.
