RECORD-G is a Windows software audio recorder. It can be used to create CD-RW, CD-R, and audio tape (assuming a 4.7 MB/second record speed). The program can be configured for automatic recording by internal and external.INI files. It supports many options, including scene selection, looping, recording of CDs, CD-RW, tape, and audios. RECORD-G is a real-time capture application. It will record for as long as you like and you can stop recording at any time. It will save each individual file to the media that you selected. The saved files can be any type of WAV file you desire. RECORD-G is easy to use! A small window, with all necessary controls, will be shown on the screen. RECORD-G will capture your audio while you are doing other things on your PC. You can stop the capture at any time by pressing CTRL+C. Then, after your capture is finished, you will be able to select your saved files by clicking on them. You can print your recorded audio directly to CD-RW, CD-R, tape, and audios. RECORD-G is completely portable and it is able to work with any MP3 encoder. RECORD-G has a built-in audio encoder (stereo or mono) and a flexible recording format that can be easily tweaked using the encoder. It can record in MP3, WMA, and OGG formats. It also supports the most popular encoding algorithms (encoder presets). RECORD-G has built-in drum sounds. The drum sounds are unlimited (there are no limitations). You can define how many drum sounds you want to add to your PC. The drum sounds can be recorded in MP3, WMA, or OGG format and the format can be easily adjusted using the encoder. You can mix and match the recorded drum sounds with other sounds. You can create a drum track that will loop, or a track that will play for as long as the recording is active. RECORD-G has a built-in equalizer. The equalizer has 5 bands (low, mid, high, mid-treble, and mid-bass), and is adjustable (up to 20%) in both frequency and gain. The equalizer and the audio encoder are completely independent. RECORD-G is 100% Free, freeware, open-source, and can

Hi Guys I'm sorry for using this forum for this issue, but I have found that it is really slow to be listed here. What I would like to know is that, is it possible to get Autorun to start using the.WAV file I want? And how do I get it to run as a.EXE file (Windows Only), so that I can run it by double clicking? Thanks Nick 01-19-2003, 03:24 PM Dan Hi. Well, I've got it running now. I only made two modifications: 1. I removed the "set mouse off" code, because this doesn't work under windows xp. 2. I made the background transparent, so you can see the buttons easier. Regarding the double-click, you can use the.EXE with this Autorun. Don't set the mouse off and set the buttons to run. The.EXE will load as a double click. Dan 01-19-2003, 03:37 PM Svetoz Man! I'm impressed with this program. Maybe a little more complex then what I thought, but it worked! It was very easy to use and configure too. I think I'll play around with this program and see if I can figure anything out to make it better. Thanks for the great program! 01-19-2003, 03:39
