The Importance of Rubbing Nails for Healthy Skin A lot of people wash their hands and feet a lot, and some people really like to rub their skin when they have a chance. Some people like to rub their feet, some people like to rub their legs, and sometimes they even like to rub their chest or arms. What most people don't realize is that rubbing your skin can actually be good for your skin and can help with your problems. People have been doing this for centuries, and it's been proven over and over again. Rubbing Your Skin Can Help Your Skin Rubbing your skin is really simple. When you want to rub your skin, all you have to do is get your hand and foot or leg, whichever you want to rub, wet, and then you can rub your skin for around two to five minutes. There are many reasons why rubbing your skin can actually help your skin, and all you have to do is go out and try it for yourself. Rubbing Your Skin Helps Your Skin Get Rid of Pores Pores are always a problem for people, and they often times end up getting them on their face. When you start rubbing your skin over your face, it helps remove the acne that you have and it reduces the size of the pores on your face. This is a great thing, because the pores on your skin will not only look good, but they will also help you reduce the amount of blackheads that you have. If you get rid of your pores, you will actually have a lot less acne than you had before you started rubbing your skin. Rubbing Your Skin Helps Your Skin Get Rid of Dark Undertones If you are trying to lighten your skin, rubbing your skin is
