RetroGunX VR is a VR game developed from the ground up as a Virtual Reality game. In it, you will only have visual information about the game and will not be able to tell the score, your kill, or your health bar. Think of this as a very stripped down version of RetroGunX that's perfect for VR. This game does feature a Time Attack mode, so you will have a timer for how long it takes you to complete the game before you "die" or you can complete a set number of waves or time challenges to unlock something special to be able to try it again. KEY FEATURES: Multiple Levels with Huge Bosses A massive 17 waves with 3 huge bosses 3 difficulty levels A first person perspective A minimalist art style Collectible Scoreboard Bonus Levels AMAZING Soundtrack Game of the Day Lives Free Controller Included ----- In game controller support, but not the classic controller mapping, controller support is via the Vive controllers as well as traditional DualShock controllers. Notes: RetroGunX VR is currently not compatible with the Oculus Rift, however, VR may be on the way for it. ----- THE DESIGNERS: With years of video game design and coding experience, RetroGunX was co-developed by me and my partner, Ben More, with a focus on graphic design, art style, sound effects, concept art, and code. We created RetroGunX to honor our games of the past, but also our games of today, making it the complete package. And, we are very excited to bring RetroGunX to the masses with VR! I may have focused on some of the newer bug fixes throughout the series, but I have the same bug list as before. If you experience any of these, please let me know. I will try to get to them before the next release, and also add to this list. NEW FEATURES CROSS-PLATFORM - Cross Platform is now available for Steam, Google Play, App Store and Amazon store. Century is a multiplayer arena fighter that puts a unique spin on the genre, allowing 20 man teams to fight each other in four different game modes including classic combat, knockout, quest and siege. Century: Age of Ashes: Century: Age of Ashes is a game that has the benefit of sharing some great gameplay ideas from other genres, yet also manages to use enough of its own twists to feel like its own thing and carve out its own lane. There are tons of concepts that put Century in a very unique place, and we wanted to see if we can make this a long term game! In an attempt to embrace the changes, we wanted to improve on the current balance of the universe. To this end, we created a new metagame that is heavily focused on the mechanics and style of the game. As a result, we changed the meta of the game so that characters are as successful as the metagame allows them to be. We added a depth of customization to the game as well, giving players tons of options. At the same time, we updated the art, animations and many other aspects of the game to remove the 70s aesthetic. We aimed to make the game look more modern, representing a more open-ended future for the players. Several of the maps we've designed have specific goals in mind to explore the flexibility and depth of the game. Conquest is a map that follows the story of a conflict that has been waging for more than a century. The map has been designed around these events, and will have events triggered as the story progresses. Besides the main story, we have included various smaller maps as side content. O. What is Century: Age of Ashes, and what sets it apart from other fighters like Tekken, Street Fighter, Soul Calibur etc? A. Century: Age of Ashes is a multiplayer arena fighter that brings a lot of modern design ideas to fight games. In Century, these ideas give the game the depth and nuances that a fighter needs. In terms of design, Century seems to be a hybrid of the design philosophies of a few games. We wanted the game to be easy to pick up and play, and we also wanted to make a game that looked good and had complex and deep gameplay. We wanted the game to draw more from the action games (newer Street Fighter and Tekken series). The most noticeable difference, and the first thing that people will notice when they pick up Century is that the game
